Budget contains 'few surprises'

UNO officials expressed little surprise, and some disappointment, at the $115.4 million budget proposed to the Nebraska Legislature for the University of Nebraska by Governor Charles Thone last week.

UNO Chancellor Del Weber said with current sentiments toward cutting government spending sweeping the nation, the University could not have expected any more money.

It had asked for $124.8 million, with a 15.8 percent increase in tax support from the state. The proposed $115.4 million budget represented a 6.8 percent increase in tax funds.

"I was not thinking this was going to be a banner year for state appropriations," Weber said. "I don't think it will be across the country."

Two high-priority capital improvement projects at UNO felt the pinch of Thone's recommendation.

Acquisition request denied

A request of $600,000 for acquisition of land on the west side of campus was not recommended by Thone and a $750,000 request for funding the remodeling of the Eppley Conference Center into offices was out to $110,000.

Weber said UNO had hoped to receive funding to acquire parcels on the western edge of campus to round out its land acquisition program. Eventually, he said, those parcels will have to be purchased.

He said he didn't know the specifics of the cut for funding the remodeling of the Eppley building, but if the $110,000 figure was correct, it would "limit very severely what we can do with that building."

UNO Campus Planner Rex Engbretson also expressed disappointment over the dropping of the land acquisition funds. He said UNO had not received money for expansion for three years and had hoped to receive funding this year.

Lump sum

One bright spot for the University was Thone recommending NU's budget be a lump sum appropriation, something that has been sought by the Board of Regents.

"I think it is much better if the Legislature gives the regents a lump sum of money," said Weber. "The regents are in the best position to say where the money should go."

Two UNO faculty leaders said Thone's recommended 6.5 percent salary increase for state employees, including NU faculty members, would not allow teachers to keep pace with the cost of living.

"The majority of faculty haven't got a cost of living raise in years, and they aren't going to get one this year," said Bernie Kolasa, head of the UNO chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

He said even though faculty raises averaged 8.5 percent last year, the majority received increases around 5.75 percent because the University used part of the money for merit increases.

If the same distribution system is used this year, Kolasa said faculty could expect raises between 4.5 and 4.75 percent.

Disappointment

Those figures could be even lower, he said, if $2 million of the tax increase must be used to replace reserve funds spent last year. University officials have requested that $2 million dollars be budgeted for cash reserves taken last April to help fund salary increases.

UNO Faculty Senate President John Langan said overall faculty response was one of "disappointment, but not sur-

He said the size of the raises were expected in light of the economic situation around the country but was disappointing compared to the greater pay increases gained by local city employees through arbitration.

"I think if they talk about quality and the Harvard of the Midwest, they should talk about the people who are maintaining it," Langan said. "If they have these expectations, they should be able to pay the bill."

Governor Thone's budget recommendations will be used by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee to draft a statewide budget bill.

Self-defense expert says women can fight assailant

By MARYLAND WILLIAMS
Gateway Staff Writer

Victims of assault are usually depicted as helpless. But according to Carolyn Hukle, that needn't be the case.

Hukle, who presented a seminar titled "Lady Stay Alive" Thursday, Feb. 1, at the Student Center Ballroom, said in most cases attackers can be talked out of intended assaults.

And if that doesn't work, Hukle, graduate of the Des Moines, Iowa, police academy said self-defense tactics such as kicking, screaming, scratching and running might.

Hukle was sponsored by Chi Omega sorority and Weapons Corp. of America as a fund-raising benefit for Cystic Fibrosis. The weapons organization sells a self-defense weapon known as Chemical Shield.

Hukle, 56, and her assistant Dean Jones demonstrated some of the self-defense tactics to about 75 women and men in the Student Center Ballroom.

Hukle said women have to re-program their minds. She said before a crime can be committed there must be two conditions: the intent and the opportunity.

Hukle said the opportunities can be cut down by 50 percent by walking either with someone or on the lighter side of the streets, taking shortcuts but staying away from alleys, keeping car doors locked and checking the back seats and underneath of the car.

According to Hukle, a rapist doesn't like light, noise or people, so he may hang around places like parking lots, supermarkets and isolated roads.

Hukle's premise was that one's body supplies many "weapons." The thumb and little finger, for example, can be used to poke out an attacker's eyes, she said.

She also demonstrated the use of the hand to crack a shin or slice a throat. Such extreme measures may not be necessary, however. Hukle and her assistant demonstrated how a short woman can trip a would-be assailant, giving herself time to get away.

Hukle and Jones demonstrated some basic street fighting methods like kicking shins, using knee drops aimed at the groin and stepping on toes.

According to Hukle, the first step when attacked is to try talking your way out or using bluffing techniques to avoid the attack.

Hukle said a woman told her she carried a plunger with her in her car, especially at night, which would appear to be a head resting against the window. If she thought she was being followed she would move the stick of the plunger to indicate the person was up.

Other personal safety rules Hukle showed dealt with purse snatching. Most purses get snatched while in the bathroom, Hukle said a woman should never hang her purse on the hooks provided in bathroom stalls. Instead, they should be placed on the floor, beneath the feet.

Hukle suggested men put their wallets in the front pockets of their sports jackets.

If a woman is flashed, Hukle suggested never showing embarrassment or anger. Instead, a sharp comment can be used, such as, "If that's the best you can do, go and hide."

Chemical Shield is a non-lethal spray considered a legal weapon, according to Bob Smith, public relations representative for Weapons Corp.

It keeps the victim from opening his eyes for at least 15 minutes and causes coughing and sneezing and excruciating pain, said Smith.

The chemical contains a dye which is sensitive to fluorescent light, helping officials detect an assailant.

Hukle has been presenting her seminar for two years and has demonstrated personal safety tactics for nine years.

Vice chancellor selected; Muse resigns CBA post

Otto F. Bauer, currently of the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, will be nominated by UNO Chancellor Del Weber for the position of the vice chancellor for Academic Affairs at the Board of Regents meeting Saturday.

If approved by the regents, Bauer will assume the duties of Herbert Garfinkel, former vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost. Garfinkel resigned last summer to take a position at the University of Louisville. UNO is dropping the title of provost.

John Kerrigan, dean of the College of Public Affairs and Community Service, has been acting vice chancellor since Garfinkel's resignation.

Bauer would assume the $46,000 a year post as vice chancellor around June according to Robert Bernier, assistant director of University Relations. He would join UNO as a full and tenured professor of communications, Bernier said. Besides his vice chancellor duties, Bauer would also have the opportunity to teach.

Bauer, 47, currently is a professor of communications at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, in Kenosha, Wis. The Parkside campus is much like UNO, Bernier said, as it is a "commuter campus."

Bauer was vice chancellor at Parkside from 1971-76 and acting chancellor from 1974-75. He also acted as special assistant to the chancellor at the University of Wisconsin's main campus in Madison.

In other administrative news, William V. Muse, dean of UNO's College of Business Administration, has resigned his position, effective June 30, to assume a post as dean of the Business College at Texas A&M.

Muse, who came to UNO in 1973 from Appalachia State University, was unavailable for comment.

Bernier said a search committee will be formed to suggest replacements for Muse.

SG-UNO, committee seats open

Nine open Student Senate seats may result in "no input" from certain colleges and classes, according to Senate Speaker Katie Rinn.

Rinn's comment came at the Student Senate meeting Thursday, after Sophomore Sen. Jeff Seitzer resigned his seat due to a conflicting schedule.

The speaker said open positions will be advertised for two weeks; the applicants will be screened and then appointed by the Senate.

Sixteen committee seats are also vacant. Any student in "good academic standing" can apply at the Student Government office said Student President John Kirk. There's usually "a big turnover" between semesters, he said, and the number of Senate and committee vacancies isn't unusual.

A list of open seats follows. One vacancy looks hopeful for the Senate. Rinn said she has received 10 applications for Chief Administrative Officer, a position Kirk has temporarily assumed. The CAO should be ready for Senate approval by its next meeting.

In other action, Kirk responded to a letter published in Friday's Gateway calling for improved conditions in the Administration Coffee Room. He said Center Director Don Skeahan plans to paint the room and add chairs over spring break.

Enrollment figures level

Second semester enrollment is down, according to a report issued by the Registrar's office.

Total on-campus enrollment for this semester is 14,037 while enrollment a year ago was 14,103. The 66-student decline represents a half-percent decrease, according to Gardner Van Dyke, assistant vice chancellor for student academic services.

"A snow storm the last day of late registration may have been one reason for the decline," he said. The snow forced the University to close Friday, Jan. 19. Late registration was extended one day to allow for the storm day.

The enrollment decline is not seen as a trend for UNO, according to Dr. James Maynard, director of Institutional Research.

But a decrease in the number of high school seniors in the spring of 1979 could bring declines in the 1980, 1981 and 1982 school years, Maynard said.

An increasing number of returning students, he said, may help to ease future declines in "traditional" students, those entering college immediately after high school.

"The College of Continuing Studies has begun to expand its off-campus programs and this is attracting more people," Van Dyke said. There are 8,081 part-time students this semester and 5,956 full-time students.

However, the number of non-resident students is decreasing, according to Charles Hein, University Relations.

The passage of LB304, which would provide some tuition relief to non-residents, could significantly help UNO enrollment in this area, he said.

Hein said it might have a noticeable effect on enrollment in the Graduate College, particularly in education.

"Teachers in the immediate area would probably come here instead of making the long drive to Iowa State," he said, if some form of tuition relief were granted.

An increase is seen, however, in the number of women attending UNO, according to the Registrar's report. There are currently 6,792 women attending classes on a full-time basis, 250 more than last spring.

"Overall, we have not been experiencing a decrease in enrollment, but rather a leveling," Maynard said. "The trend at UNO is for reasonable stability over the next few years."

Ivy league dream only idle talk?

Last week's State of the State message by Nebraska Governor Charles Thone contained few encouraging words for the University of Nebraska. Of course, none really were expected.

University officials knew their budget requests would be pared. Faculty members weren't looking for recommended salary increases of more than 7 percent (6.5 percent was suggested). Campus Planners knew that requests for capital construction funds would not all be accepted.

Ho, hum. All in the name of "holding the line."

What ever happened to the "Harvard of the Plains." An ambitious idea that grew out of discussion at a NU Board of Regent's meeting, it envisioned a University of Nebraska ranked as high academically as the football Cornhuskers are athletically.

Of course any proposal to increase NU's academic might would cost money, a luxury not afforded by the proposed budget which most observers label as "bottom line."

The "Harvard of the Plains" talk, though great newspaper copy, seems destined to remain just that — talk.

Unless funding for the University can become as ambitious as the Ivy League dream, NU will continue to be ranked — academically — in the second division.

As witnessed by the conservative budget proposed by Gov. Thone, the state seems unwilling to get behind this idealistic dream.

That is, of course, if the legislature agrees with the Governor's recommendations as expected.

The University's choices are to either cut back on programs or find the funding elsewhere — and you know what that means.

Proposed bill mandates racist ramifications

"Crisis is a time of danger and critical decision and joined with its great risks are the possibilities of great rewards."

pressed like a Sword of Damocles.

To talk of this situation as if it were sui generis or other than earthly is silly if you under-

The common denominator is simple; the male and the pale want to keep everybody in check, "check" meaning under their paternalistic dependency-fostering system. Despite the fact that whites are, at best, only 11 percent of the world population, they control, either directly or indirectly, the lives of nearly every person of color on this planet.

These neo-slave passes represent one way in which this control is reinforced and raised to the level of sacred observance.

disadvantaged" children. Office of Economic Opportunity, etc. And brothers and sisters, if we were Americans, there would have been no need for the Fourteenth Amendment granting blacks the right to vote — citizens are supposed to have that right.

Simply put, our citizenship has always been about as real as an air sandwich, for if we were citizens, there would not be such a staunch campaign to keep us politically invisible, economically dependent, socially restricted and/or militarily subjugated. And we are victims of these ploys.

Like Malcolm X, we are not Americans — we are the victims of americanism, as LB 51 will attempt to show the Chicano/Mexicano segment of our population. But as Angela Davis wrote, "If they come for me in the morning, they'll be knocking on your door tomorrow afternoon."

For more information on this repressive legislation, call me at 554-2345 without hesitation. Pamoja Tutashinda (Together We Will Win).

matthew c. stelly

Certainly, ends are contained in and shaped by means, and with this in mind, we must reject the vile and vulgar images and assertions that are being offered up in the guise of Legislative Bill 51.

In a nutshell, LB 51 is a piece of Nebraska legislation that would make it mandatory for Chicanos/Mexicanos to present some type of identification when seeking employment.

"Acceptable I.D.," as the bill reads, includes: 1) birth certificate or a certified copy thereof; 2) certificate of citizenship or naturalization; 3) passport identifying the worker as a United States citizen or national; 4) consular report of birth; 5) alien registration receipt card or 6) any other document issued by the Attorney General authorizing him or her to reside or work in the United States.

No bill or act is any more than the context to which it owes its existence, and in this sense, we can see the racist ramifications of LB 51.

By extension, our response to it must be simultaneous and complementary, i.e., collective, not only in planning and execution, but in realization. In a word, all progressive minded people must do what they can to cast this particular "act" back into the same dungeon of ignorance that spawned it.

Viewing LB 51 in a historical context, we find its arrival is not new, but neanderthal; those in power have historically forced people of color to carry what may be called "respectability badges." This title is not to infer that the bearer always received respect from the status quo, but identification of this kind gives those in power some kind of psychological boost to be able to know that their "white stamp of approval" (or disapproval) hangs over the heads of the op-stand the following truisms: the "ghetto situation." In Europe once made it mandatory to carry identification cards before entering the stockade at night; "proper ID" is mandatory in all police state/martial law-type situations; whites in South Africa make members of the black majority carry "pass-books," which must be signed by the employer once a month; many women in this so-called "modern" society must carry some kind of I.D. with their husband's name on it in order to open up an account, etc.; and many, if not most, people of color can give vivid testimony to being stopped by police late at night and being held up for hours while they "run a check."

LB 51 further has the temerity to define "alien" as "Any person not a citizen or national of the United States." Well harsh as it may sound, that includes all people of color, particularly blacks and Chicanos. Citizenship, in my opinion, is more than just being born in a particular place. After all, a lot of immigrants who were not born here are now citizens, but that was because those immigrants chose to come here.

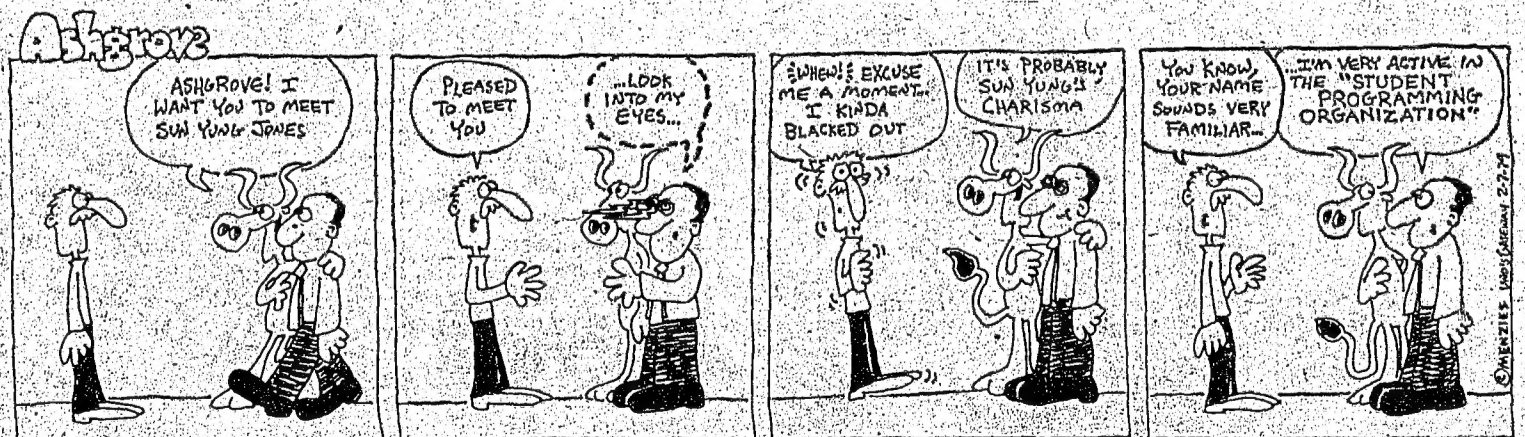

We are not American citizens. If we were, we would not need Civil Rights legislation, Affirmative Action programs, Operation Headstart for our "culturally deprived and socially

Wrestlers take 3 matches

By TIM WOODS
Gateway Sports Writer

"We're really rolling now," says Maverick wrestler Tim Cahill. Cahill and his teammates ran their record to 16-4-1 with three victories last week.

Included were triumphs over Wayne State, 45-3; Morningside, 40-5; and Nebraska-Lincoln, 26-12.

The Mavs' Dave Walton, a 118-pounder who upped his mark to 17-6 with three wins, sees the victory over UNL as "the biggest win we've had so far."

"We were all so psyched up for the match with the Cornhuskers," Walton said. "Besides proving which team is the best in Nebraska, it should help our recruiting next year. Now people will see how good our program is."

UNO Coach Mike Palmisano was pleased with the win. "It was real good. The thing that was nice about it was that nine of our kids are from Nebraska, and (UNL's) team is composed mostly of kids from different states. It was good in that sense."

The two teams had split the first four matches before Mike Wofford trounced his 150-pound opponent, Steve Peck, 14-4. That, combined with Dave Christian's win at 177 over NU's Dan Hassel, 5-3, put the match out of reach, Palmisano said.

Cahill added icing to the cake by pinning Daryl Meyer at 190 pounds, a sweet victory for the transfer student from NU.

UNO heavyweight Joe Williams holds the new school record for most pins in a season — 14 — after stopping Wayne's Ron Berrie in 3:21. Williams had tied Frank Gonzales' and Mel Washington's record by pinning Morningside's Craig Eberhart last Tuesday night.

The victory over Morningside saw UNO take all but two matches, with Walton outgunning Roger Meyers, 23-10, to give the Mavericks an early 5-0 lead.

Against Wayne, the team was outstanding, winning all but one match; Mavericks Wofford, Williams, Cahill, and Gary Baldwin (at 134) helped give Palmisano his 200th collegiate victory.

Walton believes that "we're realizing our potential. We knew we could be a strong team after tying Missouri, and now we're going even better," he said.

Both Walton and Cahill see the next two matches, tomorrow night against 16th ranked Oregon, and Saturday afternoon against always-tough North Dakota State, as highly important.

"If we beat Oregon, we'll be in great shape for ND State," said Cahill, citing the up-coming NCC Championships.

Walton continued, "If we can pull out some good matches (against Oregon and NDS), we should go in highly-rated as a team — which will help us get a better position in the draw for the championship rounds."

Lady Mavs split pair

The women's basketball team split its first two games in February, topping South Dakota State Thursday, 82-75 in overtime, and bowing to Northwest Missouri State Saturday at home, 70-66.

The visit to Brookings, S.D., ended in a second straight win over the Lady Jackrabbits. The loss to the Bearkittens was the second loss to NMSU this season.

UNO fought back from a 12-point deficit against SDSU in the second half after leading 32-30 at the intermission. The Lady Mavs could have won it in regulation time, but SDSU's Ginger Larson tipped in a missed shot at the buzzer to force overtime.

Then Niece Jochims took over. The senior from Mapleton, Iowa, hit 10 of UNO's 16 overtime points and finished the game with 31 points, 10 rebounds and seven assists.

Against Northwest Missouri, the Lady Mavs trailed most of the game. They led by four (16-12) with 11:26 left in the first half and led by two (42-40) with 14:57 left in the game.

The lead changed hands five times — four in the second half — and the game was tied 13 times. Bearkitten Patty Painter got two of her 20 points from 18 feet out to put NMSU ahead for good, 47-46, with 12:54 left.

UNO stayed close the rest of the way and even pulled within a point at 60-59 when Kriss Edwards scored from 19 feet with 4:56 left in the contest.

Painter hit a lay-in and a bomb to end that UNO threat. With 1:34 left, Painter took a rebound off teammate Julie Schmitz's missed free throw and swished a 10-footer to put the Bearkittens up 66-61.

Mavs clinch NCC cage title

By AL ALEXANDER
Gateway Sports Editor

What seemed like the impossible dream two months ago, became a reality for the UNO basketball team, as they clinched a tie for the North Central Conference championship last weekend.

With their 88-78 win over South Dakota State Friday night, and a 70-63 triumph over Augustana Saturday night, the Mavericks opened up a four game lead in the conference race with four games to play.

The win upped UNO's mark to 16-5 overall and 8-0 in the conference. It was their seventh straight victory and 14th win in their last 15 starts.

By clinching the tie, it marked the first time in seven years that a team won both the NCC Holiday Tournament and the regular season championship in the same year.

It was somehow fitting that the clinching win should come against last year's champion Augustana.

It was a hard fought win to say the least. Both teams were whistled for a total of 45 fouls (24 on UNO and 21 on Augie) during the bruising game. Most everyone agreed there should have been a few more called.

"It was a ragged game which I blame somewhat on the official," said UNO coach Bob Hanson. "There were at least six or seven layups where our guys were fouled and the officials didn't make the call. They weren't favoring either team, but they were causing both sides to become frustrated."

Despite the fouls Augustana did play some fine defense, as they were the first team this year that was able to shut down the deuce combination of Derrick Jackson and Rick Wilks.

Wilks, who had scored a season high 31 points the night before was held to just six after getting into early foul trouble. Wilks picked up his third foul with just over 13 minutes left in the half, and went immediately to the bench where he sat out the rest of the first period.

The Vikings also did a good job on Jackson holding him to 10 points. But Jackson did manage to pick up six assists to up his new UNO career record to 334.

Like so many other times this year when the Mavs' top two scorers were shut down somebody else picked up the slack. Against the Vikings it was center Steve Criss and senior forward Glenn Moberg.

Criss, 6-10, and Moberg, 6-8, had a field day over the shorter Vikings, who were missing their star center Arvid Kramer. That left 6-6 forwards Paul Schenkelsberg and Ron Kanengieter to cover the taller Mavericks.

Criss Responds

Criss responded by scoring 18 points and snagging 9 rebounds. Moberg pitched in 17 points to go with his five big assists before fouling out with 40 seconds remaining.

The pair helped UNO open up the game in the first half as each dropped in nine points. UNO took their biggest lead of the game at 28-16 in the middle of the first half, but saw it cut to five points on a free throw by Kanengieter that made it 39-34 at the end of the half.

The Vikings, who were led by guard Steve Krier's 15 points, hung tough the second half, keeping the crowd of 2,200 in the Sioux Falls Arena in their seats.

UNO showed signs of pulling away several times in the final half, but the Vikings stayed was his defense of Jackrabbit guard Cheri Chi Mahone who was held to 16 points. Mahone scored 33 points on Jackson the last time the two teams met in Omaha, and he wasn't about to let him do that again.

"I was really happy with my defense tonight," Jackson said. "I was really psyched up before the game. I didn't care how many points he scored on me, I just didn't want him to go wild."

"I think I stopped him pretty good tonight. At least I didn't let within 4-8 points of the Mavs the entire second period.

Baskets by Moberg, Criss, and Jackson down the stretch helped the Mavericks record their third win over the defending champions this year.

Against South Dakota State the Deuce had a field day as the pair teamed up to score 51 points against the faltering Jackrabbits.

Wilks, who went 11-11 from the field in his previous game had another spectacular night against SDS hitting on 15-20. Of his 31 points, 22 came in the second half as the Mavericks broke open the game the final 12 minutes.

Jackson had a great game scoring 20 points. He also extended his free throw shooting streak to 19 in a row, but saw it end later in the game.

The biggest role Jackson played in the Mavericks' win him have any easy shots or easy lay-ups."

The clutch performance of the game was turned in by Jim Gregory. He scored all of his 12 points in the first half but they were very important points.

Gregory came off the bench late in the half to score five straight baskets, (all from long range) to help send the Mavs into the locker room with a 41-39 lead.

In the second half UNO opened up a ten point lead, 53-43, with 16:12 remaining. But the Jackrabbits, led by Bob Winzenburg, who had 22 points on the night, fought back.

South Dakota State scored ten unanswered points to tie the score at 53-53 on a long range jumper by Winzenburg.

But that was as close as it got, as Jackson and Wilks went wild the final 12 minutes to lead the Mavs to victory.

Saints, Dads remain on top of rankings

By PETE DESJARDINS
GATEWAY SPORTS WRITER

After just one week of ratings, I can tell it's going to be a long season. One #1 team has already been unseated, and if you saw the last ratings, you'll see that another team wants my name changed.

If you would like to influence the ratings, I don't accept checks, Master Charge, or American Express.

In the "A" league the top two teams are the same as last week. The Saints remain on top after a 65-51 win over the Hawks. Rich Shefte and Tom Lodes each had 14 for the Saints, while Mark Caniglia had 20. Kurt Helms of the Hawks led all scorers with 23.

Just Us moves a little closer to #1 as they shot down the Sky Hawks, 84-40. Rob Wesely had 26 points for Just Us while Howard Cotton and Gordon Sims each added 18.

Strong Hold

BAPA kept a stronghold on the #3 spot, giving Soft Touch a hard time in route to a 57-43 victory. Joe Williams poured in 20 while Fred Sparks had 13, for 3-0 BAPA.

The Nuggets capture the #4 spot this week after blowing away WBJ's 52-36. The Nuggets balanced scoring was led by Don Gibbs and Pat Salerno, who each had 14, and Chris Salerno with 12. Russ Hendrix scored 10 points for WBJ's.

The Raiders are the newcomers to the ratings this week as Edd's Army was edged by A.W.T. 46-43. The Raiders as-sasinated the Killer's 57-44 behind the shooting of Doug Woodard and John Boettcher, who scored 21 and 20 points, respectively.

Dad's retains the top spot in "B" league this week after their 54-18 thumping of the Wild and Crazy guys. Dan Gadeken and Mike Williams led Dad's with 13 and 12 points respectively.

76ers Romp

The #2 position also remains the same, as the 76ers looked like their NBA counterparts in a 78-8 romp over Iota Delta. Kocsis, Raper, and Stika supplied the fireworks for the sixers, who are 3-0.

The Celtics move up a notch to the #3 spot after blasting Pen & Sword, 74-47. Art Moran slashed through the P&S defense for 25 points while Jim Mason had 20 for Pen&Sword. Gateway, #4, advanced as they closed the door on a hapless Hackers team, 56-14. Kevin Quinn burned the nets for 20 points and Paul Hammel added 9 as Gateway stayed unbeaten.

Re-Cappa Tire drops a bit as they looked flat in a 37-35 win over Hot Dogs. Ken Foster and Lee Sapp each hit a free throw in the final minute to cinch the game for the winners. Scott Falcone was the spark plug for #5 Re-Cappa Tire with 19 points.

Ranking on the Line
The top spot in Fraternity League was on the line, as Sig Nu challenged Sig Tau. With 2:00 remaining, Sig Nu lead 29-27. Sig Tau took the lead on a Bob Dannenbring lay-up and two free throws by Ken Thoms to make the score 31-29 in favor of Sig Tau.

Sig Nu refused to fold, and Ted Turner hit a bucket to send the game into sudden death. Sig Nu won the game, and the #1 spot, on Sky Masters successful jump shot.

Verne's Views

There are many Faculty, Staff and Students who park on campus and do not receive a parking violation. Yes, it can be done. However, because of various reasons, vehicles are issued violations for No Valid Permit, Unauthorized Lot, etc. What should you do? First examine the violation and determine exactly what the violation is. If, by some chance, and it happens occasionally, you may have received a violation when, in fact, you did have a valid permit on your vehicle, or you were parked in the correct area. If this is the case, bring the violation to the Campus Security Department and ask the individual on duty to check your permit and violation. The violation can be vacated if the violation is in error.

Second, if the violation is correct, since your vehicle did not have a permit or was parked in an unauthorized area or lot, don't throw it in your glove compartment — appeal the violation. If you feel there are circumstances which should be reviewed by the appeals court.

Above all, if the violation is valid — and the court upholds it, pay it as soon as possible. Violations issued during the first week of January, or before, which have not been paid, will be delinquent next week. Two or more violations 30 days past due will cause your vehicle license number to be placed on the Boot/Tow List. If your vehicle is found on campus, a Rhino Boot will be attached and you will be required to pay all outstanding fines before the vehicle will be released.

This procedure is stated on the Violation Notice, contained in the UNO Parking Regulations, and has been approved by the University Attorney and the Board of Regents. Remember, appealing a violation(s) does not remove you from the possibility of being a recipient of the Rhino Boot.

The Campus Security Department has recently been authorized to accept BankAmericard, Master Charge and Visa credit cards for parking permits and fines. This additional resource will assist individuals who may have forgotten their checkbook.

SIN Program

Several years ago, the Campus Security Department implemented an escort program called SIN (Safety In Numbers). During July and August of 1976, Security Officers escorted 11 individuals to their vehicles on campus. During 1977, request for this service has increased 323% (34 requests) for the same period of time. If you wish to have a Security Officer escort you to your vehicle, call X2648 and advise the office staff where you will meet the officer, i.e., northeast entrance of Administration Building, and an officer will be directed to your location.

Questions?

Let me know if you have any questions regarding parking. Your input and inquiries will be welcomed.
